

Public Domain Movies

Public domain films may be re-sold on DVD, shown on TV, in theaters, streamed on the Internet, used for stock footage and many other purposes -- all without paying royalties since the copyrights have long expired.

Films are sold on DVD-R or Mpeg2 video files.

The Public Domain films and TV shows in the library:

- 1) Are Clean. They contain no logos or watermarks in the corners.
- 2) Come with information as to WHY they are in the public domain.
- 3) DVDs contain no copy guard and are easy to rip and copy.
- 4) No phony "FBI Warnings" before the start of each film.
- 5) Quality guarantee.
- 6) Free replacement of any films not up to our normal high standards.

These pages are a partial listing of the Festival Films Library that divides out the Color films and indicates approximate gigabyte size for many films. Read more about the films at the Festival Films Website.

Television Shows

All are half-hour TV shows, unless noted. Some contain original commercials. All are available on Mpeg2 video files as well as DVD-R.

A trio of drug dealers lead innocent teenagers to become addicted to "reefer" cigarettes by holding wild parties with jazz music. Became a campy cult classic in the 1970s.

The Road to Ruin (1934) 62m. A young girl gets involved with a crowd that smokes marijuana, drinks and has sex. She winds up an alcoholic, pregnant drug addict and is forced to get an abortion. Bonus: Teenage JD shorts and trailers.

Sex Madness (1938) 57m. This sex exploitation film includes wild parties, sex out of wedlock, lesbianism, etc. After going to a "casting couch", a chorus girl contracts syphilis. The film then focuses on the effects this lifestyle and disease have on her marriage.

She Shoulda Said No (1949) 70m. Aka. "Wild Weed." A chorus girl's career is ruined and her brother is driven to suicide when she starts smoking marijuana.

Slaves in Bondage (1937) 70m. Mary Lou manages to escape abduction by a prostitution ring. She tells the Chief of Detectives they were planning to take her to the Berrywood road house, a well-known den of iniquity.

Test-Tube Babies (1948) 53m. A happily married couple discover that the husband is sterile. They think about artificial insemination, which at the time was considered a scandalous choice.

Too Hot To Handle (1950's) 63m. Doc-like filming of an actual burlesque show with bad comics, unattractive chorus girls (6) and striptease speciality acts by Dixie Evans and Jean Carter.

A Virgin in Hollywood (1953) 63m. A young female newspaper reporter is assigned by her editor to investigate the seamier side of Hollywood.

Black Heritage Films (56)

From the 1920s thru the mid-1950s many films were made with all African-American casts for distribution to black cinemas and all-black audiences. These inexpensive but heartfelt little gems spanned all genres -- musical, dramatic, western, comedy and even horror -- and give a fascinating peak today inside a culture and world that has been largely overlooked by history. Both color and black and white films are in this listing.

Black Jazz Soundies

Rare, restored musical "Soundies" that were played on special juke boxes in the 1940s called Panoram machines: Fats Waller - "Ain't Misbehavin'" (1941), Louis Armstrong - "Shine" (1942), Nat King Cole & Ida James: "Is You Is or Is You Ain't My Baby?" (1944), Cab Calloway - "Minnie the Moocher" (1942), Mills Bros. - "Cielito Lindo" (1944), Billy Eckstine - "Prisoner of Love" (1946), Count Basie - "Take Me Back Baby" (1941), The Three Chefs - "Breakfast in Rhythm", Delta Rhythm boys - "Take the A Train," Louis Armstrong - "Swingin' on Nuthin", Fats Waller in "The Joint is Jumpin" and Nat King Cole - "Frim Fram Sauce."

The Blood of Jesus

(1941) 57 min. Spencer Williams film about an atheist who accidentally shoots his Baptist wife, who must fight the Devil for her soul.

Go Down Death (1940) 56 min. Myra D. Hemmings, Samuel H. James. A bar owner attempts to discredit the new preacher with whom he is feuding by framing him with a photograph showing him drinking with women with bad reputations.

Boarding House Blues

(1948) 86 min. Moms Mabley and Dusty Fletcher. Tenants of a Harlem boarding house put on a show to save their home.

Boy! What a Girl!

(1947) 70 min. Tim Moore, Elwood Smith, Duke Williams. A couple of theatrical producers try to get backing for their musical show.

The Bronze Buckaroo

(1939) 58 min. Herb Jeffries sings and shoots in a black cast western.

The Devil's Daughter

(1939) 59 min. Nina Mae McKinney runs afoul of voodoo in Jamaica.

Son of Ingagi (1940) 61 min., only fair quality. Spencer Williams in haunted house horror film.

Dirty Gertie from Harlem

(1946) 65 min. Francine Everett, Don Wilson. A sexy, enticing dancer from Harlem makes things happen in a sleepy Caribbean island resort.

Sepia Cinderella (1947) with Billy Daniels and Sheila Guyse. A struggling band leader's rise to fame after overcoming many obstacles, including a bad-girl vs. good-girl situation.

The Duke Is Tops (aka Bronze Venus)

(1938) 63 min. Lena Horne plays a night club singer who gets a chance at Broadway.

Gang War

(1940) 63 min. Ralph Cooper in gangster film set in Harlem.

Moon Over Harlem

(1939) 68 min. A girl's mother marries a philanderer, who then pursues the daughter. When caught, the mother throws her out into the world of Broadway shows.

Hi De Ho

(1947) 64 min. Cab Calloway is a band leader pressured to work in a gangster bar.

Jivin' in Be-Bop

(1946) 58 min. Dizzie Gillespie and his musical friends have a ball.

Juke Joint (1947) 58 min. Spencer Williams is a con man who poses as a Hollywood actor to advance the fortunes of a small town beauty contest.

Murder on Lenox Avenue

(1941) 65 min. Mamie Smith, Alec Lovejoy. Dramatic events in a Harlem apartment house. Pa Wilkins is chosen by the Better Business League to replace their ousted, crooked leader Marshall.

Murder with Music (1941) 57 min. Night club singer Nelle Hill has many suitors -- an escaped convict, a piano player and a newspaper man. One is killed.

Paradise in Harlem

(1939) 85 min. Crime drama centered on a club singer who aspires to be a great dramatic actor.

Reet, Petite and Gone

(1947) 67 min. Bandleader Louis Jordan stars in a dual role.

Rock 'N' Roll Revue

(1955) Compilations of black performers on stage: Dinah Washington, Mantan Moreland, Duke Ellington, Nat King Cole, Safah Vaughn, Lionel Hampton, Herb Jeffries, etc.

Why We Fight Series:

Frank Capra directed or supervised this series of seven films to explain the war to both the troops and the home front.

Vol. 1:

PRELUDE TO WAR (1943) 52 min. "Why We Fight" #1

Directed by Frank Capra. Prelude to War, the Oscar-winning documentary, shows the viewer how diplomatic and political snafus made in the wake of World War I planted the seeds of World War II. Blame is pointed squarely at the American populace, who had come to believe that the problems of the rest of the world would never affect them. While America slumbered, Japan and Germany inexorably built their armies and launched their plans for world domination.

THE NAZIS STRIKE (1943) 43 min. "Why We Fight" #2

This tough-minded documentary masterfully assembles newsreel footage to trace the ascent of Adolf Hitler and his ravening hunger for global domination. After forcefully wresting the German government from more moderate politicians, Hitler installs himself as dictator. Having suppressed the Jewish people in Germany, Der Fuhrer invades the Rhineland and Austria, and subsequently calls for the annexation of Czechoslovakia. In spite of assuring the world of "peace in our time," he marches on Poland, leading to the conflict that became World War II.

NEWS PARADES OF 1942, 1943 and 1944 10 min. each

Castle Films compilation of newsreel highlights from World War II.

Vol. 2:

DIVIDE AND CONQUER (1943) 57 min. "Why We Fight" #3

Utilizing visceral newsreel footage and maps, the documentary chronicles Hitler's stunning sweep across Europe. We watch as the Nazis overcome Denmark and Norway, repel the British Army, and force France into a humiliating surrender. We discover how ground-breaking Nazi military tactics and the duplicity of traitors lead to the fall of the majority of Central Europe. THE BATTLE

OF BRITAIN (1943) 53 min. "Why We Fight" #4

Narrated by double amputee RAF fighter pilot Douglas Bader, The Battle of Britain records the courage and resolve of the British people in the face of the constant bombings by Hitler's Luftwaffe. In 1940, Britain was virtually the only European nation not to have fallen to the German war machine. At the conclusion of the film Britain's pilots are readying an air assault that will finally lead to payback for Hitler's oppression.

Vol. 3:

THE BATTLE OF RUSSIA (1943) 83 min. "Why We Fight" #5

In this Oscar-nominated documentary, we discover Russia's valiant resistance to the invasion throughout its history. The Russian people's strength of character was the key to their determination in prevailing against unstoppable German forces during some of the bloodiest battles of the World War II. The film is a wonderful compilation of authentic newsreel footage from both the U.S. Signal Corps and various Soviet sources.

THE ALL-STAR BOND RALLY (1945) 19 min.

Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Betty Grable, Frank Sinatra, Harpo Marx, Carmen Miranda and many more Hollywood entertainers sell bonds.

THE HOUSE I LIVE IN (1945) 10 min.

Frank Sinatra pleads for religious tolerance to a group of young boys.

Vol. 4:

THE BATTLE OF CHINA (1944) 63 min. "Why We Fight" #6

In this fascinating documentary we learn about the nation of China, its populace and the countries resolve to stop the invading forces of the Japanese during World War II. Starting with a short historical background to the country, we discover the reasons behind the Japanese desire for its conquest, and why they were confident of success. Ultimately, the events of the war in that region are chronicled, showing the Japanese forces taking control of portions of China to aid them in conquering all of Asia as well as the iron resistance of the Chinese people, who use all their ingenuity to fight Japanese aggression to the end.

THE STILLWELL ROAD (1945) 51 min.

Narrated by Ronald Reagan. This World War II documentary, narrated by actor (and future U.S. President) Ronald Reagan, homes in on the China-India-Burma arena of the war. The Stilwell Road (conceived by American General Joseph Stilwell) was a stunning feat of engineering and brute force construction carried out by 63,000 men. Designed to create a truck supply line that would provision the Chinese army fighting the Japanese forces on its home front, it took twenty-six months, many lives and $150 million to build. The 478 mile road started in India, cut through the almost impenetrable jungles and mountains of Burma, and ended in China.

Vol. 5:

WAR COMES TO AMERICA (1945) 66 min. "Why We Fight" #7

In this final installment of the "Why We Fight" propaganda series, the subject focuses on the United States of America. We learn of its good qualities and the things worth fighting for. With that established, we learn of the history of the United States' population shifting opinion towards siding with the Allies against the Axis until the attack on Pearl Harbour which brought America into full scale involvement in the war.

IT'S EVERYBODY'S WAR (1944) 16 min.

Narrated by Henry Fonda. 20th Century Fox short about the effect of the war and soldiers deaths on the home front.

NEWS PARADE OF 1945 (1945) 10 min.

Newsreel look at the end of World War II.

PEACE COMES TO AMERICA (1945) 11 min.

The surrender of Japan and Germany, the aftermath around the world and homecoming.

Victory At Sea c. 7 hours 21gb

Twenty-six episode series on 7 DVDs. Each episode approx. 26 min. for total run time c. 416 min. Directed by M. Clay Adams. Victory At Sea is a great television series about World War-II produced by NBC in conjunction with the U.S. Navy. Most of the footage was shot by Navy cameramen. NBC edited the footage, added a host and the famous musical score by Richard Rogers. $25 each or all 7 for $150.

Vol. 1:

DESIGN FOR WAR

As the Second World War begins, England finds itself unprepared for Germany's modern submarine fleet. The United States and Canada begin sending aid by naval convoys as the British Isles become isolated from the European mainland.

THE PACIFIC BOILS OVER

Japan continues its expansion by staging surprise attacks on the American strongholds guarding the Pacific Ocean, including the naval base at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Although their Pacific fleet is crippled, the United States responds with a declaration of war and begins gathering forces to halt the Japanese advance.

SEALING THE BREACH

The United States Navy and Merchant Marines continue their convoys across the Atlantic Ocean to bring supplies to England, despite heavy losses to German U-boats and surface ships.

MIDWAY IS EAST

As Hong Kong, Singapore, and the Philippines fall to Japanese invasions, the United States looks to stop the enemy's advance with a naval victory at the island of Midway.

VOL. 2:

MEDITERRANEAN MOSAIC

Germany and Italy try to consolidate their hold on the Mediterranean Sea, but two essential bastions of British strength--the Rock of Gibraltar and the island of Malta--refuse to surrender.

GUADALCANAL

The United States begins its offensive campaign to halt the Japanese advance by invading Guadalcanal and capturing the island's valuable airfields.

RINGS AROUND RABAU

The United States continues capturing enemy bases in the Solomons by conducting amphibious operations across the chain of islands, until the Japanese stronghold on Rabaul is surrounded and destroyed.

MARE NOSTRUM

The Italian Navy fails to dominate in the Mediterranean Sea against the Royal Navy, and the lack of supplies brings the Axis campaign across North Africa to a halt.

VOL. 3:

SEA AND SAND

American forces undertake offensive operations against the Germans by landing troops in Algiers and Casablanca. As the British army advances across North Africa from the east, the Axis forces are caught in a vise of Allied strength and face certain defeat.

BENEATH THE SOUTHERN CROSS

The Battle of the South Atlantic begins as German battleships, raiders and U-boats seek to stop supplies from being shipped out of South America to the Allies fighting in North Africa.

THE MAGNETIC NORTH

As the Second World War spreads across the globe, even the harsh Arctic region becomes a battleground. In the North Atlantic, Allied convoys head for Murmansk, carrying supplies to aid Russia in its fight against Germany. In the Pacific, Japan seizes the frigid island of Attu as another stepping stone, but American forces quickly respond with their own invasion to secure the area. CONQUEST OF MICRONESIA

After a brief refit in Hawaii following the victories at Midway and Guadalcanal, the United States Navy returns to support the destruction of Japanese forces guarding the Gilbert and Marshall islands.

VOL. 4:

MELANESIAN NIGHTMARE

Japanese forces continue their advance across the South Pacific by making a bold inland march along New Guinea. The fate of Australia hangs in the balance as the Allies take their own offensive operations to secure the vital base at Port Moresby.

ROMAN RENAISSANCE

Following up their success in North Africa, the Allies continue the task of securing the Mediterranean Sea by making an amphibious assault on Sicily, and then into the Italian mainland itself. The fascist government of Italy falls as Allied troops capture Rome, and Germany finds itself alone to defend the ground of its former partner.

D-DAY

The Allies stage the largest amphibious assault in history by landing thousands of troops along the Normandy coast of France. As the German army attempts to destroy the invading forces, Allied naval superiority once again proves to be the deciding factor in providing support and supplies to ensure victory in the perilous operation.

KILLERS AND THE KILL

Although Germany's surface fleet is no longer a factor beyond D-Day, its submarine packs continue to wreak havoc upon the Allied convoys that are vital to the survival of troops fighting in France. The Allies develop new ways to counter the U-Boat threat to open the pipeline to Europe.

VOL. 5THE TURKEY SHOOT

The American battle fleets return to reclaim Guam after almost three years of Japanese occupation. The Japanese forces in the Marianas attempt to stop the invasion, but suffer devastating loss--and Guam returns to American hands as an important base in the drive towards Japan.

TWO IF BY SEA

Japanese strongholds in the Palau Islands are the last line of resistance as American forces continue their approach to the Philippines, and the heavily defended islands of Pelelui and Anguar become the next targets for the island-hopping campaign.

THE BATTLE FOR LEYTE GULF

In a desperate attempt to defend the Philippines, the Imperial Japanese Navy gathers its forces to meet the American fleets head on, resulting in the largest naval battle of the war.

RETURN OF THE ALLIES

American forces begin the bloody task of dislodging the Imperial Japanese army from the Philippine archipelago. After taking the southern islands and landing on Luzon, the Americans fight their way north to liberate Manila. General MacArthur has kept his promise to the Filipino people: "I shall return."

VOL. 6:FULL FATHOM FIVE

From the earliest days of the war, the American submarine fleet was crucial to the success of interdictioning Japanese convoys and defending strategic locations such as the Panama Canal. The factories in Japan were totally reliant upon the shipping of resources from remote parts of their empire, and as merchant ship losses to submarines grew, the Japanese war machine faced certain defeat.

THE FATE OF EUROPE

The Third Reich begins to crumble as Allied amphibious landings liberate occupied territories and open up other fronts that must be defended; Soviet marines help to liberate the Crimean area, and American and Free French forces land in Southern France. The German forces are pushed back as Allied forces attack from all directions, until Berlin itself falls and the War in Europe comes to an end.

TARGET SURIBACHI

As the US Navy continues to dominate the Pacific theater and Japan comes within striking range, the air campaign begins its final stage. A small, volcanic island becomes prized for its airfields and an essential strategic target: Iwo Jima. A 35 day battle results with more than 47,000 casualties to both sides.

THE ROAD TO MANDALAY

As the great naval battles sweep across the Pacific Ocean, a different type of warfare unfolds in the jungles of Southeast Asia. The early success of Imperial Japan's armies placed India, a vital part of the Allied supply line, in peril and a successful defense of Burma leads to the liberation of vast areas of Asia.

VOL. 7:SUICIDE FOR GLORY

The Battle for Okinawa, the last great battle of the war, starts as US forces begin securing islands in Japanese waters. With their own fleets destroyed, the Japanese make a desperate attempt to defend their homeland by sending the last of their aircraft squadrons on suicide missions to sink American ships by crashing into them.

DESIGN FOR PEACE

With an Allied invasion imminent, and nuclear devastation a reality, Imperial Japan submits to an unconditional surrender--the Second World War is over. As Allied troops begin returning to their homes in victory, war-torn countries around the globe begin rebuilding the destruction left by years of conflict.

BONUS FILM: D-DAY: THE NORMANDY INVASION (1944) 51 min. Filmed by US Coast Guard.

Other WW-II Documentaries:

Volume 1:

DECEMBER 7TH, 1941 (1942) 34 min.

Produced by John Ford. This Oscar-winning documentary on the Pacific War begins with Japanese preparations before the bombing of Pearl Harbor and ends with the U.S. dropping the atomic bombs on Nagasaki and Hiroshima. Aside from the interesting footage on the Japanese home front before Pearl Harbor, there are also many questions raised as to why the U.S. was not aware that Pearl Harbor might be bombed.

YANKS BOMB TOKYO (1942) 10 min.

Newsreel report of Doolittle's bombing run over Japan.

APPOINTMENT IN TOKYO (1945) 55 min.

This World War II documentary covers the American war effort in the Pacific from the fall of Bataan and the Philippines to the surrender of Japan on the deck of the U.S.S. Missouri. Covering events through the use of Army Signal Corps film footage as well as captured Japanese newsreels, the documentary presents the war with an up close feel and a realistic, though opinionated, approach.

Volume 2:

THE WORLD AT WAR (1942) 44 min.

Official War Information Bureau documentary about the decade of war that led up to the Dec. 7, 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor, taken from news reels and captured enemy films of the events.

ATTACK IN THE PACIFIC (1944) 52 min.

After a fascinating introduction to the diverse Pacific islands and their inhabitants, the documentary segues to the rise of Japanese military might from its home base all the way to Australia, including the critical turning point attack on the US naval base at Pearl Harbor. We see, at first hand, the methods used by the Allies, particularly the U.S., to ready counterattacks against Japan, including a harrowing island by island advance that generated a devastating body count.

TO THE SHORES OF IWO JIMA (1945, Color) 20 min.

This Academy Award-nominated documentary graphically depicts the American assault on the Japanese-held island of Iwo Jima and the massive battle that raged on that key island in the Allied advance on Japan. The five marines and one sailor who raised the American flag on Mt. Suribachi are shown.

Volume 3:

ATTACK! THE BATTLE FOR NEW BRITAIN (1944) 59 min.

This gripping documentary chronicles the relentless and bloody 1943 Allied assault on the entrenched Japanese forces on Arawe Beach and Cape Gloucester, New Britain. Beginning with unsparing training footage of the Allies preparing for the assault, you are then presented with the three-prong Allied attack to retake the island of New Britain. Despite the heavy losses, the Allies were victorious in this pivotal battle of the South Pacific theatre in World War II.

SUBMARINE WARFARE (1945) 53 min.

For those not familiar with US Navy Submarine Force of WWII, this documentary is an excellent introduction. After the bombing of Pearl Harbor, the submarines of the Pacific fleet eventually would destroy Japan's merchant fleet and cripple their Navy. Comprising only 2% of the US Navy Fleet, submarines were responsible for sinking over 55% of all Japanese tonnage sunk during WWII.

Volume 4:TUNISIAN VICTORY (1944) 76 min.

Directed by Frank Capra and John Huston. With Burgess Meredith. This documentary was made by the British and United States Service Film Units. Frank Capra and Roy Boulting directed this account of the North African campaign in World War II; it covers the period between the American intervention in 1942 and the Allied victory. Burgess Meredith and Bernard Miles narrate.

MARINES AT TARAWA-RETURN TO GUAM (1944) 40 min.

Directed by Louis Hayward. The documentary covers two of the Marine Corps' most savage battles. Tarawa was characteristic of the vicious island fighting that was the hallmark of the war in the Pacific. Fought within an area the size of the Pentagon, three days of fighting claimed almost 10,000 lives. The second part of the documentary portrays the return of the Marine Corps to their recaptured base on the island of Guam.

Volume 5:THE MEMPHIS BELLE (1944, Color) 42 min.

This award-winning World War II documentary covers the 25th and final mission of "The Memphis Belle", a B-17 Flying Fortress that flew bombing missions over Europe. Covering the various aspects of the mission, including footage from the actual flight of its raid on the German submarine pens in Wilhelmshafen, Germany.

THUNDERBOLT (1947, Color) 45 Min.

The documentary chronicles the exploits of the P-47 Thunderbolt pilots of the "Fighting Gamecocks" of the 65th Fighter squadron, 57th Fighter Group. Based on the island of Corsica off the northwest coast of the Italian boot, they flew from behind the enemy's flank. As part of "Operation Strangle," they continuously attacked highways, bridges, ammo dumps, railroads and just about anything that moved to choke off the flow of supplies to the Axis front line.

LETTER FROM BATAAN (1942) 15 min.

Paramount dramatization about the effect of a soldier's death on the folks back home. With Richard Arlen, Susan Hayward, Jimmy Lydon, Joe Sawyer.

Volume 6:THE TRUE GLORY (1945) 81 min.

Directed by Garson Kanin. The documentary was compiled from actual footage of the World War II Allied invasion of Europe, seen through the lenses of thousands of different cameramen. Beginning with D-Day, the documentary reveals the key European engagements all the way to the fall of Berlin, along with individual stories that bring the conflict to life. The prologue is read by General Dwight D. Eisenhower, with Robert Harris and Peter Ustinov providing narration. The True Glory won an Academy award for Best Documentary in 1945.

THE BATTLE OF SAN PIETRO (1945) 38 min.

Directed by John Huston. According to Time magazine, "San Pietro is in every respect as good a war film as any that has been made; in some respects it is the best. A record of one of the tense and bloody battles for the Liri Valley in Italy in late 1943, it is a story told chiefly in terms of the experiences of one infantry regiment -- the 143rd of the 36th Division.

Volume 7:GREAT BATTLE OF THE VOLGA (1962) Russia, 66 min.

This documentary depicts the Russian forces heroic battle to stop the invading German army from taking Leningrad. The Nazi battle plan, codenamed "Operation Barbarossa", was to take the vital city in their efforts to conquer all of Russia. The documentary shows the resolve of the Russian troops as they battle against the well-organized and outfitted German forces, the rally of the Russians against impossible odds and the horrific results of this battle.

REPORT FROM THE ALEUTIANS (1943, Color) 47 min.

Written and Narrated by John Huston. This Oscar-nominated documentary chronicles the everyday activities of the US troops who protected Alaska's Aleutian Islands from Japanese assault. Director John Huston focuses on the human element, emphasizing the determination and character under pressure of the soldiers on the line, stationed in this isolated part of the world. Huston narrates the film with the considerable empathy.

Volume 8:AFTER MEIN KAMPF: The Story of Adolf Hitler (1940) 54 min.

Produced in war-time England, this is the first actual documentary produced outside of Germany to depict the rise in power of Adolf Hitler and his plans for world domination. The feature uses actual film footage and dramatic reconstructions to present the rape of Poland, the seizure of the Low Countries, and the attacks on Great Britain. This documentary was obviously meant as war-time propaganda, but it is still remarkable for its content.

NUREMBURG TRIALS (1947) 58 min.

Soviet produced look at the trials that followed the fall of Germany. Deadly serious, this film is almost too somber to be taken with a straight face since the narration often comes across as rather preachy and purple. Its pure propaganda in the "we were right to try these people" sort of way and is clearly biased against the defendants who had just set Europe aflame.

JAPANESE RELOCATION (1942) 9 min.

Documentary short demonstrating American reasons for interning Americans of Japanese ancestry following the outbreak of war between the U.S. and Japan.

JAPANESE AMERICANS 7 min.

Short honoring Japanese Americans who served and died in Italy during WW-II.
